1. Job Description: Providing training on labour rights and basic human rights of employees

1.1. Background

Association for Human Rights in Ethiopia (AHRE) is a non-governmental, non-partisan, and not-for-profit organization dedicated to the advancement of human rights protection in Ethiopia through research-based investigations and evidence-based advocacy at the national level. The organization is registered under the FDRE Authority for Civil Society Organizations through proclamation number 1113/2019 with registration number 5223.

AHRE, in collaboration with AFD (Agence Française de Développement), is undertaking a project with the goal of enhancing the capabilities of labor associations to advocate for and safeguard the rights of employees in relation to their work and human rights. To achieve this objective, AHRE aims to provide training to representatives from trade unions and employers' associations, equipping them with a comprehensive understanding of the rights pertaining to employees in the workforce. By doing so, these authorized individuals will be better equipped to recognize, respect, protect, and fulfill the fundamental rights of workers. Additionally, the project will emphasize the importance of establishing effective complaint procedures and promoting peaceful methods for addressing issues, thereby facilitating the exercise of rights and the resolution of disputes. Therefore, hiring a qualified trainer on labor rights and basic human rights for employees has been deemed essential in order to empower all relevant stakeholders involved.
